Profile

Louise Ward Morris (MRSS) is an award-winning British sculptor specialising in New Media. Her practice combines diverse interests in technology, architecture, psychology, and science to create sculptures that examine the parameters of human communication and perception through technology.

Born in London, Louise lives and works between London and Barcelona. She has received awards including the 2024 Ramon Llull Institute & Fabra i Coats Mentorship Award, the 2023 Royal Society of Sculptors' Gilbert Bayes Award and the 2022 Clifford Chance UAL Award for Sculpture. In 2021, she received an MA in Fine Art with distinction from Central Saint Martins.

Louise's work has been exhibited by British and international institutions, including Saatchi Gallery, Tate Modern, Royal Society of Sculptures, The Art House, London Short Film Festival, APT Gallery London, Manifesta15+ Barcelona and Common Room Shanghai. She has been commissioned by Clifford Chance and the Royal College of Nursing and is funded by organisations including the Arts Council, Artists' Information Network and the South Square Trust. Her work is held in collections including UAL and the Royal College of Nursing.
